Recommended Readings

The following is a list of recommended readings from the contributing editors that they feel will pique your interest and help keep you informed.

From Ruth Ann Woodley

This editorial in The New York Times discusses the recent coverage of studies suggesting that antidepressants aren't effective after all. This is of interest to health actuaries since this class is a big chunk of drug spending. And it raises fascinating broader issues about the difficulties of designing sound research on medical efficacy. For more information, visit <http://nyti.ms/pVwwkq> or use the QR code.
