Last year, the Management and Personal Development Section pledged to provide at least one article in each of the five topic categories, which are the focus of our section. The five categories are:

Management

- 1) People management (leadership, recruiting, performance management, etc.)
- 2) Business management (decision-making, strategic thinking, etc.)

Personal Development

- 3) Career development (marketing yourself, interviewing, professional image, etc.)
- 4) Communication skills (presentations, writing, listening, etc.)
- 5) Interpersonal skills (negotiation, influence, personality style management, etc.)

I plan to carry on the work our last editor, Sim Segal, so ably achieved. To do this, I need both your contribution and feedback. First, I need the contribution of all of those who have a passion for personal and professional development. You are the ones with valuable insights, strategies and skills to share with our readership. Here's your chance to make a contribution to your colleagues and the actuarial profession via an article in The Stepping Stone.

Second, I need feedback to know what else you as our readers would like to see this year in this newsletter. Let us know what's working and what's missing so that we can serve you better.

For both contributions and feedback, I can be reached at dave@translifecoach.com. I look forward to hearing from you. □
